Fed Cattle Lower, Hogs Also Declined At Markets Monday

Market supplies of slaughter cattle and hogs were about normal Monday at the central markets. Fed steers and heifers were generally unevenly lower with declines of 50c to $2 in the market, and some quotes off more when compared to early last week. Limited activity in the carcass beef trade Monday was at about steady prices.

Hog also sold lower at these markets Monday with most markets reporting 50c lower rates, and a few in the western sector off as much as 75c to $1. Price trends, quotations on choice and prime steers and heifers and the mixed good to choice grades and on good to choice hogs were as follows:

Calf Crops Expected to be Smaller by 1 to 2% in 1986-1987, Decline of 1.7 Million Cows From 1985 Noted Montana's cow herds have decreased about 15% this past year, by add. USDA reported Montana had 1.4 million cows Jan. 1, 1986, and a 15% reduction would put the herd at about 1.3 million head. Like Nebraska, in 1985 Eastern Montana was plagued with a summer drought and early snowfall, he said.

Tommy Beall, director of research for CattleFax, estimates cow numbers fell 1.7 million head in 1985, or about 3.7 pct. from the end of 1984. Most of the decline occurred in Northern states because of weather and financial problems, he said. Ample feed supplies in Texas and the Southeast last year slowed cow liquidation, he said.

Not only are ranchers selling cows, he said, but fewer heifers are being retained to place in cow herds. There has been a "larger-than-normal" share of heifers placed in feedlots, he said.

The cow liquidation should reduce calf crops 1 to 2% in 1986 and in 1987, Hummel said.

Fundamentals Support Cattle Rally Into Spring

Kansas City, (KRF) — Technical considerations do not particularly support a rally, and in declining beef complex values, but cash fundamentals do, said Mike Bunde, Kansas State University Agricultural Economist.

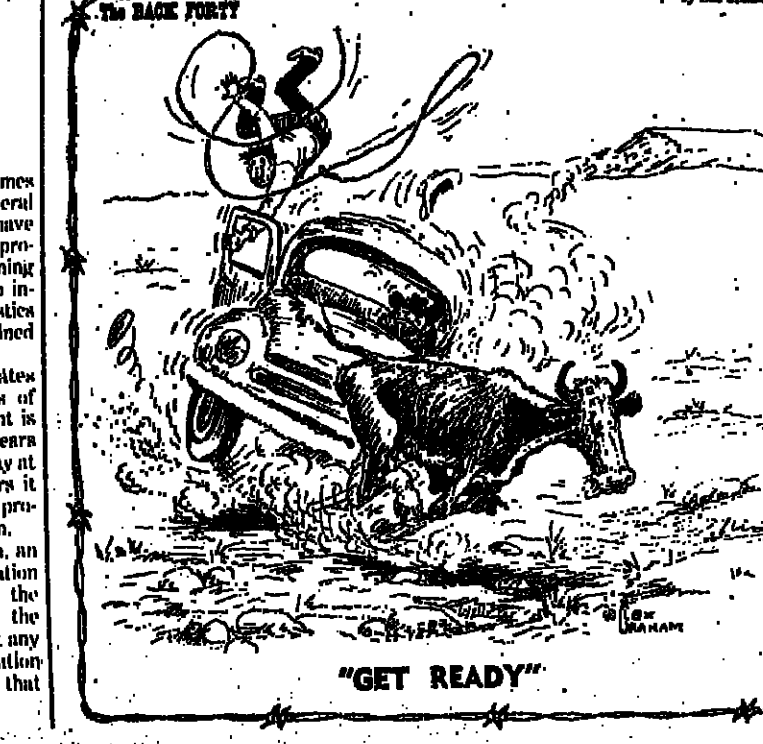

Feedlots have stayed current this winter and carcass weights continue to move lower, which should spell out a rebound in choice steers values to the up per $40 per cwt area this spring, Bunde said in a KSU sponsored telecast on Jan. 16.

Slide, said the price uptrend in November and early December was directly related to the sharp narrowing of the farm-to-retail price spread in the July-Nov. period. Retail prices held fairly constant but cattle prices rose sharply during the November-early December period until the "back" eased out of the margins. At that time the mid-December cattle price slump occurred.

A rise in cattle prices now will have to be accompanied by higher retail and wholesale beef prices, which Bunde expects retailers and consumers to accept, to a point.

Cattle weights should continue to decline from last year's record-high levels, but inexpensive feed costs in 1986 will probably keep weights relatively high. Bunde expects new feed grain programs outlined under the 1985 farm bill to accommodate livestock producers in the form of cheap feed.

Sands called the dairy portion of the farm bill a "Band-Aid" solution to the dairy surplus problem and expects minimal producer participation in the whole-herd buyout program.

He said, however, that resulting dairy cow culling should not be significantly disruptive to choice beef prices.

Sands noted that as part of the program, USDA will buy 400 million additional pounds of beef in the 18-month period the program is in effect.

roughly the equivalent the culling is expected to put on the market. If the government gives that meat away, it will to some degree displace sales of other red meat, he said.

Stuph & Thangs

White House he tried to draw a head, the excess evident here and there as he not only ran into a roadblock in Congress but from the establishment and of the special interests who were responsible for these excesses to begin with.

It is interesting to note some of the dire predictions coming out of the projects. The other day the USDA meat grading and inspection service stated it was likely that the packing houses would have to shut down, those forces were reduced. Now the average American will probably be alarmed at the thought that the purity of their meat was in danger if the inspections were relaxed or gotten rid of, the average consumer does not know the packers PAY for these services as also overtime, when needed. It was appear unlikely that a packer would shut off from services he pays for.

Here in Texas the Office of State Federal Relations announced that Texas school kids will go without EXACTLY 85,872 doses of polio vaccine and EXACTLY 37,190 doses of diphtheria-tetanus-whooping cough vaccine. It makes one wonder just how these figures are arrived at down EXACTLY ninety-five thousand in hundred and seventy TWO.

We can understand the situation at levels of Govt. from city to county state to national when a meat as approach like the Gramm-Rudman Act is used. It is sure to take some muscle and bone right along with the fat.

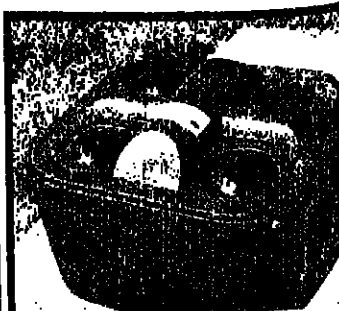

If all of these gloomy predictions have to have solid foundations, Gramm-Rudman may be something very good indeed. It just may make Congress a th' Administration get on the ball and th' changes they should have been doing all this time.

It reminds again of the farmer with two-by-four swatting the mule between the eyes. It's got their attention!

Ever thine,
 The Editor.

The Southwest Pinzgauer Association held its winter meeting at Canton, Texas, Jan. 11, 1986. Those members present were fed the famous covered dish dinner and in general, was filled to the brim. President Marie Hooper opened the meeting with the presentation of the new perpetual trophy that goes to the high-point Jr. Member for the year, (presented at the end of each year or end of show season.) This year's high-point Jr. Member was Cheryl Plunk of Wills Point, Texas.

Cheryl was quick to point out that this was possible only with thanks to and for Kount Two, Klint, Kountess (her show cattle) and most of all to Kount, thanks to Woodie Talbot of Hi-Point Ranch and to Dad for helping to feed and haul the cattle to the shows.

President Marie Hooper asked the APA President, Bob Sullivan (G&S Cattle Service) to give a report on the status of the National Association. Bob explained some of the new registration rules that are being implemented and several other points of interest. One of these is a new multi-colored magazine featuring Pinzgauers, news, breeding articles and Regional News Letters similar to what the SWPA now has for news. The new magazine will have a section of news from each region with members contributing to it with their news and information.

SWPA Vice-President, Jerry Plunk was asked to report on the past and upcoming year as to SWP Jr. Association activities planned. The Jr's will again have 10-15 shows they will participate in and will probably establish 8-10 Point Shows in 1986.

They also plan to be at the National Show in Tyler, Texas this fall and give Sr. Members a run for the money and championships. Again, thanks to the SWPA members for making available to Jr. Members some of the finest cattle in this country for them to show.

SWP Junior Assn. News

Capps had the Grand Champion Bull (Kount's Boy), a Kount calf & full brother to National Reserve Grand Champion Bull, Champ II, owned by G&S Cattle Services. Cheryl Plunk won Reserve Grand Champion Bull with her bull, Kount Two, a son of Kount, also. John Thorne of Garland, Texas won Grand Champion Heifer at Winnabro and Butch Capps won Reserve Grand Champion Heifer. A new Jr. member, Lisa Edwards, won Grand Champion Heifer and Reserve Champion going to Butch Capps at the Simms Jr. Livestock Show. All ten head of cattle shown were sired by the well-known Champion bull, Kount, except Butch Capps' fine young heifer, who is sired by Bandit, a fine bull owned by Doyle Dove.

Several of the Jr. Members are showing cattle that are from Hi-Point Ranch, Doyle Doves' and John Thorne, Sr.'s herds, but at Simms, we were in "Kount Country" and the Jr.'s when they finished showing, they visited the Hi-Point Ranch at nearby New Boston, Texas.

The Jr. Association selected at the beginning of 1985, 5 Point Shows that they would compete in for points to determine the High Point Member of the year. These shows were Van Zandt Jr. Spring Show, Grand Saline, North East Jr. (Sulphur Springs) Winnabro Autumn Trails & Simms Jr. Show. They hope to select a member as Jr. Association Members competed in about 15 total shows this year, but only 5 of the shows for Points.

The results this year are as follows: Cheryl Plunk, Willis Point, 289 Points (High-Point - 1985).

Butch Capps, Canton, 182 Points. John Thorne, Jr. Garland, 116 Points. Jon Foster, New Boston, 78 Points. David Thorne, Garland, 74 Points. Lisa Edwards, Simms, 30 Points. Phillip Cox, Garland, 29 Points. Lee Todd, Canton, 16 Points.

Large Crowd on Hand For ROV Angus Show At National Western

The seats were filled and the aisles were packed in the Stadium Arena at the 1986 National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colorado, for the Roll of Victory Angus Show. Spectators as well as breeders and exhibitors were on hand to watch Judge Bill Wilson, Cloverdale, Indiana, and associate judge Dr. Dee Woody, Carbondale, Illinois, sort through 187 Angus bulls and heifers during the two-day event.

After all was done, there were many happy exhibitors. One group was the owners of the grand champion bull, Cobble Pond New Yorker. This February 1986, the Drive Big Sky son weighed in at 2,529 pounds and is owned by Gallagher's Farm, Inc., Glen, New York, and Cobble Pond Farm, Millerton, New York. New Yorker was previously slayed the senior champion bull. Harrison, the reserve senior champion won the second top bull spot for his owners B & L Properties, Shawnee, Oklahoma; Belle Point Ranch, Lavaca, Texas; and Windy Acres Angus, Harrison, Nebraska. This 2,634 pound champion bull runner is a May 1983 son of Dr. Spock.

In the 110-head heifer show, Judge Wilson and Woody went to the junior champion, Stewart's Elba 4118 and slayed her as the grand champion heifer.

the Cow Business" is the title of a new beef cattle planning booklet, available January 1, from the American Angus Association. Designed to help commercial cow-calf producers to stop and take a second look at their operations, the 12-page publication features original illustrations by cowboy cartoonist Jerry Palen, reports Keith Evans, director of communications for the American Angus Association. Using Elmo, Palen's famous cartoon rancher, the booklet explores some of the misconceptions that have governed many aspects of the beef cattle industry in recent years. Using research results and common sense, Elmo discovers that some of his goals and management practices over the past few years have been wrong. He then designs a program to correct them. In the booklet Elmo concludes for example, that single trait selection has actually worked to decrease his overall beef producing ability and cut his income, rather than the opposite. The booklet, which sells for $1 to cover shipping and handling will be available from the American Angus Association after January 1, 1986.

What gives us our deepest satisfaction in life? Psychologist William James answered that question in a letter written to his wife in 1878. Wrote James: "I have often thought that the best way to define a man's character would be to seek out the particular mental or moral attitude in which, when it came upon him, he felt himself most deeply and intensely active and alive. At such moments there is a voice inside which speaks and says: 'This is the real me!'"

Futures Insight

Week Ending Jan. 16

I have been very "bearish" towards the cattle market since the first week of October. I have been urging hedgers and speculators alike to "sell into" the market, looking for a sharp break in prices. Thus far, the cattle market has performed as I forecast.

There are many reasons given for such a sharp break in prices. But the most common reasons given are poor demand and a dramatic increase in slaughter. This unusual increase in slaughter has burdened the marketplace with an even greater amount of "tonnage". Thus prices were pressured into mid January.

Over the past several weeks, due to declining prices, the number of "beats" in the cattle market has increased considerably. Many brokerage houses, brokers, and market services are now urging their customers to sell the cattle. And with prices declining for the entire livestock complex, such recommendations would seem wise.

However, I believe the time is now ripe to cease being a "bear" and to concentrate on the more encouraging fundamentals that should lead to higher prices. These fundamentals are powerful enough to propel the market $8 to $10 higher than prices we are now seeing. A rally of that size will cause the "bears" to run for cover. And such a rally will be a pleasant surprise for ranchers.

Let me begin by saying that this year's cattle market is not like last year's. Last year the market fell sharply during the Jan./Feb. period and soon went into a free-fall. The main difference between this year's market and last year's market is price level. This year's prices are nearly $10 below a year ago. That fact in and of itself is a positive factor for the "bull" case.

Now that I've become a "born again bull", let's look closely at some of the more positive aspects of the cattle market. Hopefully this will give us the courage and guidance to test the "long" side of the market in the weeks ahead.

The Federal government recently stated that there was a jump of 320,000 workers onto non-farm payrolls. This jump in employment was considered "bearish" for bonds and the report was a contributing factor in the record setting drop in the Dow Jones.

I look upon this surge in non-farm workers as new demand waiting in the wings to consume red meat. This jump in employment was a most welcome piece of news if you're bullish on cattle.

The most compelling argument for a rise in cattle prices rests with the recent Cattle on Feed and Pig Crop Reports. The hog report indicated that pork producers have no plans to increase production over the next few months. The cattle report suggests that supplies of fed cattle will be sharply lower in the second quarter of 1986.

Following these reports, the entire livestock complex rallied sharply. But the market was then more concerned with the heavy rate of slaughter. And because "markets" worry more about today's problems than they worry about tomorrow's problems, the higher prices were unsustainable. The livestock markets quickly dropped to levels last seen months ago. The lesson here is obvious. Because a report in "bullish" doesn't mean the market has to go up.

Which way from here?

In the weeks ahead, the cattle market should continue to attract steady demand. There's also the possibility of increased demand due to a growing labor force. And recent reports suggest that there will be less pork and beef on the marketplace in the second quarter of the year.

Here are some thoughts and suggestions for those brave and hearty souls that would like to catch a "bull" move in the cattle market.

1. Confine your purchases to the April contract. It's in April that the greatest shortage will occur.

2. Maintain a bullish bias toward the cattle market and probe the "long" side in the weeks ahead. At current levels the risks involved in playing the "bull" side of the market appear limited.

This is a major change in attitude for me regarding the direction of cattle prices. Between now and the middle of April the odds appear great that we're in for a real nice move upward for prices.

Get 'em on ya they're going up!

Please remember that by the time you read this column in the newspaper, it is approximately two weeks old. And two weeks old in this business is definitely ancient history.

1946-1986 "40 Years of Excellence"

FEBRUARY 19TH, 7:00 P.M.

HOUSTON, TEXAS

It was a somber overcast summer day when 18 Zebu bulls crossed the bridge linking Mexico with the U.S. at Hidalgo, TX. That event, the famous 1946 importation, marked the beginning of a new era in Bos Indicus cattle breeding in the United States.

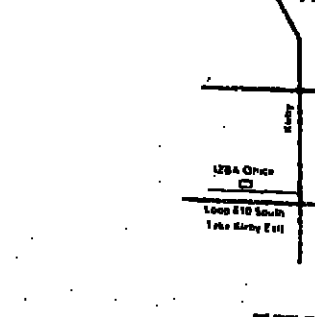

Throughout the past 40 years, overwhelming progress has been made in improving the quality of Zebu cattle. The 40th Anniversary Sale is in celebration of the time and dedicated effort put forth by countless breeders sharing this common goal.

The 15 select females being offered exemplify 40 years of striving for constant improvement in quality. The 40th Anniversary Sale is a time to celebrate our accomplishments as a breed and share the genetics we have worked hard to develop.

Missionary Zeal

Conquistadors and later, Spanish soldiers, moved into Texas to claim the land. The "religious" from Mexico soon followed, establishing missions on the frontier to enlist Indian souls. The missions were transitory agencies of both the state and the church and their purpose was to convert the Indians and civilize the frontier.

The Catholic missionaries were given ten years from the time of their arrival to tame the area; in their eyes, weaning the Indians from their savage ways, and teaching them to pray and plant crops. Few of the missions in Texas achieved their goal in ten years and some were abandoned without hope, admitting a kind of mission impossible. Padre Francisco Garcia wrote in his diary in 1775, "I see that for a century the faith has been planted in these provinces, and that nothing has prospered."

Still, missions and presidios combined to create stable communities that resulted in settlements ranging from East Texas to the Rio Grande frontier. Funded by the Spanish crown and administered by missionary friars and the apostolic Colleges of Santa Cruz and Guadalupe, the missions were set up as industrial and agricultural schools as well as Christian seminaries. Franciscan missionaries were trained to communicate with the natives in their own dialect and to integrate Spanish as a second language, historian Felix D. Almaraz explains. The friars then introduced stone masonry, carpentry, farming, animal husbandry, weaving, leather tanning, blacksmithing and even some of the fine arts: church music, choir singing, dancing and painting.

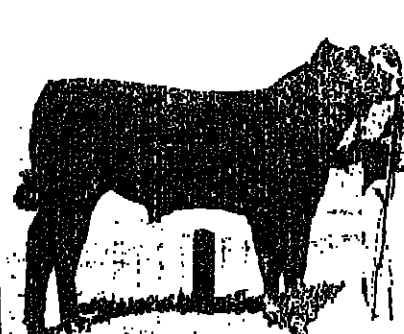

Almaraz says, around 1690 in East Texas and later in 1718 along the banks of the San Antonio River, the missions became training centers for Indian converts to take on municipal responsibilities. The plaza of the mission was tantamount to the plaza of a civil town. The Spanish church and government officials never intended the missions to become permanent government fixtures. Once the conversion process was complete, the missions were secularized. The church remained the center of Christian spiritual development while property was distributed to the newly designated vecinos, landowners, and citizens of the Spanish empire.

Mission San Antonio de Valero, or the Alamo, was the first mission to be secularized in 1793, followed by the partial secularization of N.S. la Purissima Concepcion de Acuna, San Jose y San Miguel de Aguayo, San Juan Capistrano, and San Francisco de la Espada, all in the San Antonio area. The East Texas missions had become ineffectual as soon as the presidios were removed.

Among the missions in West Texas, Spain had issued a grant of 36 square miles to the Tigua Indians who had left New Mexico during the Pueblo Wars and migrated to the Juarez area. Their grant near El Paso del Norte was centered at the mission church Corpus Christi de los Tiguas de Ysleta.

But after almost a century of persistence, historian T.R. Fehrenbach asserts in his book Lone Star, the total population of Spanish Texas was less than three thousand, including all the converted Indians and garrison troops. This thinly-settled territory was hard-pressed to prevent the advance of Plains Indians and Anglo-Americans in to New Spain from the north and east. This Texas Sesquicentennial series is courtesy of The Texas Committee for the Humanities, The Shell Companies Foundation, Inc., and this newspaper. The Texas Committee for the Humanities, 1985.

Beefalo Will Show At Oklahoma City

The American Beafalo World Registry will hold its national show and sale in Oklahoma City next year, it was announced last week. Officials of the Louisville, Ky.-based group said they will attempt to stage the show and sale in conjunction with the State Fair of Oklahoma in the fall. "The board looks forward to holding their national show and sale in what we consider to be pretty well the heart of cattlo country," said Tom Martin, the group's president. "We think we will get a much better response to our show and sale in this part of the country," said Martin. of Richardson, Texas.

The last show and sale was conducted in Louisville in 1984. Martin said classes of competition have not been determined. He expects to sign a contract with state fair officials in early 1986. Beafalo officials had considered offers from Kansas City, Kan., Tulsa and Shreveport, La., before selecting Oklahoma City, a spokesman said.

The interesting thing about humor is that you don't have to make up much. Truth, like marriage, is stranger than fiction. This fellow came home just at daybreak and stumbled in the door. His wife was waiting for him. "Where have you been all night, you no good house?" "My dear," he said, "I know how light-ly you sleep and not wanting to wake you when I came in half an hour past your bedtime of 10 p.m. last night, I slept in the hammock on the front porch."

"Oh, yeah," she said, "Well, I'll have you know that I had a garage sale two months ago and sold that hammock."

Pulling himself up to his full inflated stature, he replied, "Well, that's my story and I'm sticking to it."

"I'm sticking to this one, too. A friend of mine has a wife who believes he ought to be home for lunch on time. As a private business man, he sometimes gets involved and might forget that lunch should be somewhere."

In a very short, snappy tone, she pointed to a big bowl of popcorn pudding and said, "Since you can't get here on time, you can make do with what's left."

He said, "Oh, yeah!" and grabbed a bowl in one hand and with the other unwashed hand extracted a handful and plopped it into the bowl.

Angered and shocked, she grabbed a handful and plopped it on his chest. Seeing the danger, he retreated to the bathroom, locked the door while she yelled, "Come out, you coward, and fight!" "It was a close call. He cleaned up, changed shirts, and listened at the door for a long time."

Tip-toeing out, he saw his wife calmly washing dishes again as if nothing had ever happened. As he was making his way to the house, his young son and daughter, shunned the door and ran back inside. "Daddy," asked the son, "what's that white stuff all over your windshield?"

That's his story and she's sticking to it. So is the topic. - Copyright 1985 Doc Haskins Pokin Fun Newspaper Syndicate.

Farm Expansion - Is Now The Time?

is not fully utilized? If the operation expands, can you get "better buys" by buying larger quantities of seed, fertilizer or other inputs? Answers to the above questions reflect if the farmer can expect any economies of size and scale in an expanded operation. Often producers find by expanding an operation they can make more money on their existing acreage by averaging their fixed cost of operation over more land.

Pecuniary economies in purchasing is another reason to consider expanding. Whether or not a producer can buy inputs cheaper in larger quantities or not is an individual question, but recent USDA studies reflect that large farmers pay up to 10 percent less for inputs than smaller farmers.

Marketing skills of large farm managers are often thought to be sharper than for smaller farm managers. No hard evidence is available to support or refute this, but logic does support the claim. Larger quantities of say cotton can be marketed using a combination of cash sales, forward contracting, hedging on the futures market, commodity options and other methods to stretch the marketing year to take advantage of price up ticks. Use of some of the marketing possibilities is not feasible when smaller quantities are sold.

Profit making consequences of farm expansion are not the only concerns of farmers. Of course, economies of size, marketing opportunities and pecuniary economies are all important in the long run. But, in the short run, financial consequences may be more important.

Will an extra piece of land be a good buy? Will the annual income from the new land and the existing operation and any expected price appreciation generate as much total wealth as other investments? This question forces us to look at alternative investments. It is easy to see CD interest rates drop, but any analysis of investments beyond that is beyond the scope of this article. If we buy more land, how will we pay for it? Let's pay cash! That's a fine idea if one has the cash or other investment that can be used. A recent survey indicated that 50 percent of commercial farm land transactions were cash sales. Cash purchases relieve a lot of the concerns that non-cash borrowers face. But most of us don't have the cash, so we need to finance the purchase either with the seller or a commercial institution. Financing with a commercial institution is easy. After asking several requirements, interest rates, loan length and other policies such as prepayment options or missing payment, a decision can be made which commercial lenders may select.

want to allow a prepayment because of their tax situation. Setting a fixed interest rate for, say, the next twenty years, may be longer than they - or the buyer wants. With seller financing, buyers and sellers need to negotiate many more purchase terms than price alone.

Purchase decisions need to be made with respect to how to take title for the new farm also. There are many income and estate tax considerations to be made, and these decisions may save many tax dollars. The above questions will be addressed in a seminar "Buying More Farmland sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. It will be held on Tuesday, January 28, 1986, from 9:30-4:00 at the Holiday Inn North, San Antonio, Texas. Registration fee is $75.00. For registration information contact your County Extension Agent or Wayne A. Hayenga, Agricultural Economics Department, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843. Phone: (409) 845-2226.

Fever Tick Control Effort Continues

Austin - Livestock inspectors are continuing their efforts to control an outbreak of fever ticks that now involves 20 counties, according to Dr. John W. Holcomb, Executive Director, Texas Animal Health Commission.

Thus far, a total of 10 premises are known to have infestations of fever ticks. They are located in Cameron and Starr Counties at the southernmost tip of the State. Cameron County has eight premises infested and Starr County has two.

Quarantines have been imposed on one or more premises in these counties: Austin, Bee, Brooks, Colorado, DeWitt, Duval, Fort Bend, Frio, Galveston, Gillespie, Karnes, LaSalle, Medina, Refugio, Walker, Wharton, Hidalgo, and Zapata. A total of 165 premises are now under quarantine. Of that number, 80 are classified as exposed, 80 are adjacent, and 15 are listed as suspect premises. An exposed premise is one which has received livestock and/or material from an exposed or infested premise. An adjacent premise is one located contiguous to an exposed or infested premise. A check premise is one where the degree of exposure is questionable and quarantine is placed on the premise until an investigation can be completed as to the degree of exposure, if any.

The albatross has the greatest wing spread of any bird - 11 feet from tip to tip.

A NEW ERA, A CONTINUOUS TRADITION, CONSTANT DEDICATION.

"Excellence in '85" was the catalyst of a new era in Polled Hereford history. The investment community, junior Polled Hereford members, and Polled Hereford breeders in twenty three states and three Canadian provinces joined the Pharris Team in a record setting event. It is with the same dedication that "Excellence '86" has been developed.

Hotline progeny have been dominant in the 1985 Sire Summary, in bull test centers, and in the show ring. Hotline calves dominated the 62nd National, the International Breeders Futurity and the 12th Junior National. In a continuing tradition "Excellence '86" will feature offspring from the source of Hotline genetics. Selling will be helpers bred to Hotline, Riser and Mainstream, the top of our 1985 calf crop and a selected few embryos and flushes from the Pharris Donors. The quality will again be the very best available.

We invite each of you to join us at the ranch for "Excellence '86," January 29, 1986 and the activities the evening before at the "International Extravaganza," featuring international cuisine and headliner entertainment. Five Good Reasons To Use A Feed-Through Product For Horn Flies

Mid-February marks the beginning of the horn fly season in the southern states, with infestation in the northern areas beginning in spring and lasting through summer. When horn flies attack, they torment cattle resulting in sizable losses in feed efficiency, rate of gain and milk production.

During the last few years, a barrage of products have been introduced to prevent performance losses from the pesky flies. The products fall into three categories: ear tags, which are impregnated with an insecticide; topical products such as sprays and those which are applied with dustings and backrubbers; and feed-through products.

According to Dr. A. L. French, an entomologist at Moorman Manufacturing Co., feed-through products offer several advantages that a producer won't find in ear tags or topical products.

1. Prevention: A feed-through product is ingested by the animal and passed in the manure, where horn flies make their breeding ground. The product prevents the flies from developing past the immature pupal stage, thus eliminating adult fly development.

2. Efficiency: Some feed-through products have not been associated with resistance problems, a major drawback in using ear tags. In some areas of the country — particularly in the southern states — several ear tag customers have reported that the devices were not effective after even a few years use due to resistance to the insecticide in the ear tags. Reports of resistance problems are fewer, however, from producers using one particular feed-through product. This product, MoorMan's IGR Minerals[®], has a ten-year history with no resistance problems reported.

3. Convenience: Feed-through products require no extra labor for administration. They can be self-fed using conventional methods. Sprays and ear tags require additional handling for application and may require additional equipment.

4. Cost Effective: Compared to average prices for ear tags and topical products, MoorMan's feed-through products products are very competitive. MoorMan's IGR Mineral Products incorporate the benefits of horn fly control plus 100 years of mineral nutrition in one convenient product.

5. Nutritional Benefit: Another major advantage in using a feed-through product is the benefit derived from the nutrients in the product. Not only do IGR Minerals prevent horn flies from developing, they also supply cattle with a scientific balance of minerals to help maximize growth and enhance the utilization of nutrients from other feeds.

ABS Receives Award For Exports

American Breeders Service (ABS), a division of W. R. Grace & Company, has been awarded the Wisconsin Governor's Export Achievement Award.

Governor Anthony Earl presented the award to ABS President Dr. Robert E. Walton at a special ceremony during the International Trade and Procurement Conference held in Milwaukee recently.

One in every twelve jobs in Wisconsin depends upon the export of products from the state, and the Export Achievement Awards were created to recognize export expansion efforts made by Wisconsin firms. ABS exports in one of the past five years have created employment for over 200 people in the U.S.

The International Division of ABS was formed in 1960 marking the firm's long-term commitment to the development of export markets. Each year the firm hosts over 1,000 international customers, trade missions, and government officials wanting to learn more about their product and services at their headquarters in DeForest, Wisconsin. ABS is the largest artificial insemination organization of its kind in the world and markets frozen bull semen in each of the fifty states and over 50 foreign countries.

Husa Hitch Hustler Plus
Only One Of Its Kind

Yuma, Nebraska — A new development in the trailer hitch industry has produced a removable hitch, which for the first time, can be adapted to either a conventional trailer or a fifth wheel trailer.

H. D. S. Inc. has introduced the unique Husa Hitch Hustler Plus, a new adaptation of the popular Husa Hitch Hustler. The outstanding feature of the Hitch, like its predecessor, is that it does not require modification of the pickup bed by bolting, cutting, drilling and/or welding.

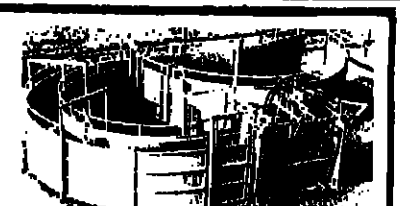

Installed or removed in minutes, the Husa Hitch Hustler Plus straddles both wheel wells. It positions the ball or standard 48" or 54" fifth wheel plate over the rear axle of the pickup. Two pairs of pivotal stabilizer arms under the side rails of the bed and a bumper attachment bolted directly to the bumper secure the assembly. This hitch is easily adapted to all standard 1/2 ton or 3/4 ton pickup trucks. For information contact Joe Hudlicka, Route 1, Box 764, Yuma, NE 68073.

Wayne, N.J. — The Environmental Protection Agency has granted registration for Vigilante® insecticide in a controlled-release bolus for cattle.

The Vigilante bolus, manufactured by American Cyanamid Company, controls horn and face flies breeding in the manure of beef and dairy cattle for as long as five months. The insecticide also aids in the control of house and stable flies.

Vigilante, an efficient insecticide in an integrated pest management (IPM) program for cattle, effectively controls flies resistant to pyrethroids and organophosphates.

Treatment of cattle should begin at the onset of the target fly season or should conform to area recommendations. The insecticide is dispensed with a standard bolting gun, and dosage is as follows:

For Cattle Weighing Number of Boluses
300 to 500 lbs. 1/2
500 to 825 lbs. 1
825 to 1,100 lbs. 1 1/2
1,100 lbs. or greater 2

The product should not be administered to cattle weighing less than 300 pounds, with a maximum dosage of 2 boluses for any animal weighing more than 1,100 pounds.

Vigilante insecticide is available in packages of 12 boluses; each 50-gram bolus contains 4.75 grams of Diflubenzuron.

St. Joseph, Mo. — Anchor Animal Health introduces new Ear Force insecticide ear tags for season-long control of face flies. Face flies are among the major carriers of pinkeye-causing bacteria among cattle.

In addition to face flies, Ear Force tags control other profit-robbing: non-resistant horn flies, Gulf Coast ticks and spirose ear ticks. Ear Force tags also aid in the control of lice, stable flies and house flies.

Ear Force tags are labeled for use on beef cattle and dry or lactating dairy cattle. The easy-to-see yellow tags are impregnated with 10 percent permethrin, a proven insecticide. With a strengthened wide neck, the tags will hang in the ear full season long. The tags use Allflex studs, included in the package.

For more information, write Anchor Animal Health, 2821 North Belt Highway, St. Joseph, Mo., 64502.
